Framing the experience.

The Humbird Lumber Company, was the lifeblood of Sandpoint's economy and community in the early 1900's. Humbird's impact on Sandpoint was tremendous - transforming the town from a population of about 400 people to more than 3500 in ten years. The mill also changed the city's demographics from predominantly male dominated enclave to a community, brimming with families.

The logging camps were remote and when the loggers came to town, they were easy to spot wearing their flannels over long underwear, dirty logging jeans and suspenders. Fast forward to 2022 and you may have just described half the people who have a ski pass to the mountain. Just replace the dirty jeans with Carhartt's and the suspenders with Kinko gloves. Of course, the flannels remain along with the work hard, play hard mentality.

Humbird provides our modern motley crew a well-earned place to rest after an invigorating day on the mountain. The timber beams shape this space and are as impressive as the history behind the name. Take in the views of the mountain and allow Humbird to frame your experience.
