Schweitzer's Summer 2025 Season Delivers New Trails, Signature Events and Expanded Wellness Programming

Sandpoint, ID – Schweitzer, the largest mountain destination in Idaho and Washington, kicks off its summer season on June 13 with a refreshed lineup of outdoor experiences, new wellness offerings, and expanded lodging packages. With lift-accessed mountain biking, scenic chairlift rides, signature spa treatments and curated concerts, the mountaintop setting offers a unique blend of adventure and alpine serenity all summer long.

"Our summer programming continues to evolve to meet the energy and interests of our community and guests," said Tom Chasse, president and COO of Schweitzer. "With the addition of new trails, special events, and elevated wellness offerings at Cambium Spa, we're offering something for everyone, from adventure seekers to those looking for a little R&R."

Trails Update: New Mountain Biking & Hiking Terrain

Schweitzer offers more than 40 miles of mountain biking trails, and that network continues to grow this summer with the completion and extension of the Collab Trail and the addition of a new hand-built black diamond technical trail. E-bikes are welcome on the mountain, giving riders even more flexibility to explore the terrain. One of the most impressive rides is the 12-mile descent from the summit towards the valley floor, delivering over 4,000 feet of vertical drop on primarily singletrack trails.

Trail expansion continues throughout the greater Sandpoint area, including the Lower Basin section of the Little Sandcreek Watershed, located adjacent to Schweitzer. A dynamic partnership between Schweitzer, SMP Development, the City of Sandpoint, the Selkirk Recreation District, and Pend Oreille Pedalers (POP) has fueled rapid growth in this area over the past few years. What began as a grassroots effort has evolved into a thriving network of trails serving hikers, mountain bikers, and trail runners of all abilities. Featuring a range of beginner, intermediate, and advanced routes, the Lower Basin now serves as a vital link between Sandpoint and Schweitzer's expanding trail system. Building on this momentum, the partnership plans to add a machine-built climbing trail, several hand-built technical bike trails, and a dedicated hiking trail, all part of a long-term vision to create a sustainable, world-class trail system grounded in community collaboration and environmental stewardship.

"These new trails are more than just paths through the woods, they represent the kind of community Sandpoint is becoming," said Emily Strizich, executive director of Pend Oreille Pedalers. "This project has brought together land managers, volunteers and professional trail builders with a shared vision of sustainability, stewardship, and world-class recreation."

“The growth of Sandpoint’s mountain biking scene over the last few years has been incredible,” said Maeve Nevins-Lavtar, City Parks Planning and Development Manager. “We’re thrilled to see these trails becoming a year-round driver of outdoor recreation promoting both a healthy economy and a healthy community.”
